Client Profile

“TraceSecurity allows us to comply with federal and state regulations, minimize risk, identify threats, and mitigate exposure, while ensuring our clients’ data is secure.”

Prior to TraceCSO, Jones Walker implemented companywide security practices that included the deployment of point solutions, educating employees on security best practices, and enforcing acceptable use policies. When clients began requiring Jones Walker to meet the regulations of their industry - such as banking, retail, healthcare, and higher education - they found these new requirements impossible to manage without hiring dedicated information security personnel. “We are now required by many clients to comply with the same federal and state regulations that they do, including HIPAA, HITECH, Red Flags, and more. In order for us to continue serving these clients, we became subject to the same scrutiny and are often subject to security and compliance audits,” said Jason Enlow, Director of Information Technology at Jones Walker.

TraceCSO Delivers Regulatory Agility

Wanting to be proactive, Jones Walker knew they needed a more complete solution that provided visibility across all industries. When adding a new client in a new industry, TraceCSO allows Jones Walker to see any gaps in its existing information security policy and quickly fill them with updated or new policies, training, and controls. “TraceCSO has allowed us to further develop our entire program, including education, updating policies, and automating risk analysis and reports for clients,” Enlow continued.

Making Compliance Seamless

Since implementation, Jones Walker continues to refine its information security program. TraceCSO allows them to be proactive and make its third-party compliance audits a seamless and painless experience for everyone. “We are able to generate reports much faster and with much more accuracy than ever before, which is imperative when responding to client security requirements,” Enlow stated.

Integrating all of the solutions necessary for a complete risk-based information security program within TraceCSO, Jones Walker has access to all the resources necessary to create and manage its ongoing program. In addition, TraceCSO provides improved control through integration that reduces redundancy, automates tasks, streamlines the reporting process, and delivers compliance by default.
